

I-CHING: THE CHALLENGE TO THINK OTHERWISE Experiencing this ancient Oracle, makes us contact a hidden part of our own consciousness. Its practice is a real training for the mind to grow beyond everyday's verbal level. It is, in fact, a true spiritual adventure. At first we approach the Book trying to get some information we can possibly use for any purpose, because the Western mind has been trained that way. But over time, we discover that the practice with the Oracle is a subjective process which has the virtue of providing meaning and purpose to the task of living. In time, we discover that everything that come about us, actually originates in the way we think, feel and act. And what we are, ultimately, is what we want to be. That any problem of any kind, is quite significant and its meaning depends on ones inner attitude. This is "Transfigural Thinking"; a different way of using the intellect. Metaphorically one could say that, like a trapped animal, human consciousness vents the smell of the forest through the fence of ideas and beliefs where is enclosed. And soon will jump to gain new freedom and possibilities
